

Edward Meir – Mr. Meir has been in the commodities business for more than 30 years. After getting his BA in Economics from McGill University and his M.B.A from New York University, Mr. Meir started his career as a research analyst with Drexel Burnham Lambert, covering the tropical commodities. He spent the next nine years trading aluminum, tin and steel for Trans-World Metals and after leaving them, formed his own company involved in physical agency business and research services. In 2011, after being with MF Global's base metals and energy team for eight years, he moved his consultancy to INTL FCStone, where he continues to provide award-winning research on the LME markets. Metal Bulletin ranked Mr. Meir as the #1 overall base metals analyst in terms of forecast accuracy in 2011, 2014 and 2015, assigned him a #2 ranking in 2013 and a #3 ranking last year.
